Policy Statement

The Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner (OPCC) for Humberside will ensure that information is not kept for longer than is necessary, and will retain the minimum amount of information that it requires to carry out its statutory functions.

Aims and Objectives

It is recognised that information is a vital asset of the OPCC, which depends on reliable, up-to-date information systems to support the work that it does and the services provided to the citizens of Humberside. This policy and standards will help the OPCC to:-

- Ensure the retention and availability of the minimum amount of relevant information that is necessary for the OPCC to operate.

- Comply with legal and regulatory requirements, including the Freedom of Information Act 2000, the Data Protection Act 2018 and the Environmental Information Regulations.
- Save employees' time and effort when retrieving information by reducing the amount of information that may be held unnecessarily.
- Minimise the administrative overhead to the OPCC and save money in terms of storage costs where hard copy information is taking up office space and electronic documents are using excessive storage capacity on computer equipment such as network servers.
- Preserve corporate memory.

Record Retention

Retention periods are given in whole years and are from the end of the financial year to which the records relate. Records should be disposed of by arranging for collection of confidential waste for destruction or shredding, including all copies in whatever format.

Aside from the standard procedure, set out below, whenever there is a possibility of litigation or a request under the Freedom of Information Act the records that are likely to be affected should not be amended or disposed of until the threat of litigation has ended or the appeal processes under the Freedom of Information Act have been exhausted. In these circumstances the Data Protection Officer should be consulted.

Standard Procedure

This procedure applies to records which do not need to be retained. Information which is duplicated, unimportant or of short term use can be destroyed under this standard procedure, including:

- compliment slips
- catalogues and trade journals
- telephone message slips
- non-acceptance of invitations
- messages or notes not related to OPCC business
- requests for standard information provided by the OPCC
- out of date distribution lists
- working papers which lead to a final report
- duplicated and superseded material such as stationery, manuals, drafts, address books and reference copies of annual reports
- e-copies of documents where a hard copy has been printed and filed

Wherever possible, paper records are to be scanned into a searchable, structured records management system and the originals disposed of. This does not apply where the original documentation must be retained in its original format – for example some financial records.

Retention of Business Records

All business records shall be retained for a minimum of 6 years from the date they are filed. After the 6 year period records will be reviewed for accuracy and either retained for a further period or securely destroyed.

This retention period shall be the default where the document type is not covered in the disposal schedule.

Erasure

Records that are no longer required for a business purpose must be permanently erased.

- If the personal data has been shared, the recipients must be informed about the erasure unless this is impossible or involved disproportionate effort
- If personal data has been made public in an online environment then reasonable steps must be taken to tell other controllers to erase links to, copies or replication of the data
- Where a request for erasure is made by a data subject this must be considered alongside the lawful purpose for processing that data

Offsite Storage

The force's Records Management Section should be consulted for options for the storage of records which require a higher level of security or are to be retained permanently.

The attached Schedules set out the retention periods for particular records.
